Hadrian's Wall is the largest single Roman monument in the world and their most impressive legacy north of the Alps. In 2006 more than a million people visited some part of the 73-mile long site, and four years ago it became a World Heritage site and a path was laid out along its whole length.

The Wall : Rome's Greatest Frontier by Alistair Moffat ...

The Antonine Wall was perhaps the most advanced example of a Roman linear frontier. There was no sense that it would be a short-lived expedient. Vici, the familiar civil settlements, quickly grew up and, beside the walls of the fort at Carriden, the inhabitants seem to have been particularly independent-minded.

Abandonment, Invasion and Desertion - The Wall: Rome's ...

There is more than a metaphor in this juxtaposition. A native structure built inside the rectilinear streets and walls of a Roman fort by men who probably spoke Old Welsh but regarded themselves as part of the armies of the Empire. Clearly life on the Wall had been changing long before the end of the province and the break with Rome. ECHOES OF ROME
